Instructional Unit: Review and Practice

5

- This unit should be used for application and consolidation of previously studied material. It also allows for additional cultural presentations and student projects.

Additional Activities and Review:

Additional activities are at the discretion of the instructor. They may include readings (in the text or from other sources) and other classroom proficiency-oriented activities and/or projects.

There should be periodic review and examinations of material covered. Weekly quizzes are appropriate. The final review and examination should be cumulative. The final exam is worth 25% of the student's final grade.

Supportive language lab exercises are provided for each topic to be accomplished by students on an individual basis in the language lab.

SPN 1121 COLLEGE-LEVEL ACADEMIC SKILLSI. COURSE FOCUS

This course involves some or all of the following teaching strategies:

- A. Presentation of new material orally, for repetition and control;
- B. Use of visuals and total physical response activities as aids in comprehension and recall;
- C. Reinforcement of correct pronunciation habits established during the initial lessons;
- D. Gradual development of the ability to create and write sentences and brief, simple paragraphs using learned material;
- E. Treatment of grammar as vocabulary, with a gradual increase in the complexity of the grammatical structures;
- F. Gradually increasing emphasis on individual oral response instead of group repetition and response;
- G. Reinforcement of audio-lingual skills in laboratory sessions;
- H. Elicitation of both oral and written student responses to questions and/or prompts;
- I. Emphasis on listening and reading comprehension and the use of course materials in direct discourse, which involves asking questions, making appropriate responses and volunteering information.

II. COURSE GOALS

The following general performance goals will be addressed in the course, based on the national standards scale set by the American Council of Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL). These categories are directly parallel to those in the performance objectives described in detail with outcome measures in section IV (see attached document).

- A. Listening (oral comprehension), at the Intermediate-Mid proficiency level.
- B. Speaking, at the Intermediate-Low proficiency level.
- C. Reading, at the Intermediate-Mid proficiency level.
- D. Writing, at the Intermediate-Low proficiency level.
- E. Attitudinal/Culture, at the Intermediate level.

More specifically, the student should be able to perform the functions at the targeted levels as described in the ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines. These functions are elaborated upon in the performance objectives detailed with outcome measures in section IV.

A. General Goals

- 1. To speak the language well enough to satisfy immediate needs using learned utterances, and with a pronunciation that is intelligible to native speakers used to dealing with foreigners.
- 2. To comprehend some non-memorized, spoken language in areas of immediate need or on very familiar topics provided that such topics are supported by context; comprehension is reasonably accurate if utterances are short and contain redundant elements.
- 3. To read simple, connected discourse, either authentic material or specially prepared recombination of known and unknown material; accuracy in comprehension depends on high-frequency and highly contextualized vocabulary and syntax that parallels the native language.

4. To write, from dictation or memory, simple fixed expressions, and short sentences based on very familiar sentence patterns; spelling errors do not interfere with comprehension of such writing.
 5. To display limited awareness in basic, culturally specified verbal and non-verbal behavior; does not offend a native of the culture used to dealing with North Americans.
- B. Specific Objectives - For each unit students will:
1. Recognize and reproduce the sounds of the language.
 2. Respond appropriately to visual and/or verbal cues in the unit.
 3. Participate in simulated conversations within the limitation of vocabulary and structures studied.
 4. Read aloud with comprehensible pronunciation a reading selection.
 5. Write in simple, but understandable Spanish on the reading selection.
 6. Use accurate grammatical forms in speaking and writing within the limitations of the level of the course.
- A. Successful proficiency in the target language upon the completion of this course should range from Intermediate-Low to Intermediate-Mid on the ACTFL scale as described in the ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines. Assessment of performance in the course will be based on the student's proficiency as demonstrated in as many of the evaluation methods listed below as the individual instructor deems appropriate.
- B. Suggested methods of evaluation:
1. Establish evaluation as a continuing and developing process, formative in nature, practiced as frequently as class and laboratory sessions are held, with proficiency in the target language representing the final outcome in student performance.
 2. Emphasize correct pronunciation, smoothness, and intonation in oral reading and conversational sessions.
 3. Check listening comprehension for gist, main idea, and/or specific information from a variety of input, including authentic video and/or audio tapes, textbook or instructor-prepared materials. Listening comprehension activities can also check for control of appropriate vocabulary, structure, and culture.
 4. Have students interact orally in pairs, small groups, one-on-one interviews with the instructor, and/or have them make oral presentations. These oral activities should allow for control on a variety but limited number of topics and should allow for some limited creativity and recombination of learned material.
 5. Provide authentic reading materials in the target language with which to check comprehension and application of information gleaned from documents. Emphasis should be on strategies for skimming for main idea and scanning for specific information.

6. Consider meaningful written material, with emphasis on message as well as on syntax. Short writing tasks that in each case represent a whole in themselves, such as notes, messages, postcards and letters, should be used to evaluate functional use of learned material as well as to check spelling, sentence order, sentence structure, and punctuation. Written material may also include brief dictation exercises, brief answers to questions, written words in completion statements, personalized rejoinders in completion of open-ended statements, closed paragraphs, and adaptations of given paragraphs. These written activities should allow for control on a variety but limited number of topics and should allow for some limited creativity and recombination of learned material.
7. Provide opportunities for growth in attitudes about the importance of effective communication in an increasingly global society, about the cultures of those who speak the language studied and its effect on the world, and in appreciation of the contributions to society of other languages and cultures. The geography, history, and political contributions of the target culture are appropriate areas to be addressed. The descriptions set forth in the latest ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines are the general descriptive guidelines to be used for global assessment of the four basic skills of listening, speaking, reading and writing. It is expected that upon the students' completion of the course, his/her performance will be in the Intermediate stage of proficiency, minimally at the Intermediate-Low level but preferably at the Intermediate-Mid level, with some peaking into higher ranges for certain skills, namely reading.
 - A. The students' listening comprehension performance will be satisfactory if he/she is able to do at least one of the following:
 1. Interact understandably in a prescribed number of chats on familiar topics;
 2. Exhibit understanding of main ideas and some details of connected discourse on a number of familiar topics;
 3. Perform satisfactorily on a listening proficiency test appropriate for beginners who are completing one semester of instruction; or
 4. Respond accurately to at least 70% of short-answer questions asked about very familiar topics. For example, the questions may be taped or presented live, either by the instructor or by another student in the presence of the instructor; or there may be written questions based on the limited-vocabulary dramatizations or monologues to which the students listen in a testing situation.
 - B. The student's speaking performance will be satisfactory if he/she is able to give orally and understandably in the target language the most frequently-used greetings and farewells as well as to do one or more of the following:
 1. Participate understandably in a prescribed number of chats on familiar topics;
 2. Give, with the aid of pictures or drawings, orally and understandably from memory, a prescribed number of narrations (monologues); or
 3. Perform understandably and from memory one's role in each of a prescribed number of dialogues, with the aid of pictures, drawings, or props, if appropriate;
 4. Present any combination of dialogues and monologues, as described in (2) and (3), to make a prescribed total number of presentations;
 5. Perform satisfactorily on an oral proficiency test or speaking competency test appropriate for beginners who are completing one semester of instruction; or

IV. PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

6. Give oral, understandable, and accurate sentence responses to at least 70% of the short-answer questions asked about very familiar topics.
- C. The student's reading performance will be satisfactory if he/she is able to demonstrate understanding of main ideas and some details of authentic texts in familiar areas of high interest by responding accurately to at least 70% of the short-answer questions asked about the limited vocabulary selection(s) given to be read during the reading evaluation process.
 - D. The student's writing performance will be satisfactory if he/she completes provided writing tasks in such a way that his/her written communication may be fully understood by the instructor, after consultation and rewriting as necessary.
 - F. The student's attitudinal/cultural performance will be satisfactory if he/she participates, sometimes actively, sometimes as an observer and listener, in a least seven-tenths of the oral and cultural learning activities planned and carried out for the purposes of group instruction (with provision for supplementary and/or substitute activities at the discretion of the instructor); and if they persevere to complete the course.

ACTFL PROFICIENCY GUIDELINES

The 1986 proficiency guidelines developed by the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) with grants from the U.S. Department of Education, represent a hierarchy of global characterizations of integrated performance in speaking, listening, reading and writing. Each description is a representative, not exhaustive, sample of a particular range of ability, and each level subsumes all previous levels, moving from simple to complex in an "all-before-and-more" fashion.

SPEAKING

Intermediate-Low

Able to handle successfully a limited number of interactive, task-oriented, and social situations. Can ask and answer questions, initiate and respond to simple statements and maintain face-to-face conversation, although in a highly restricted manner and with much linguistic inaccuracy. Within these limitations, can perform such tasks as introducing self, ordering a meal, asking directions, and making purchases. Vocabulary is adequate to express only the most elementary needs. Strong interference from native language may occur. Misunderstandings frequently arise, but with repetition, the Intermediate-Low speaker can generally be understood by sympathetic interlocutors.

LISTENING

Intermediate-Low

Able to understand sentence-length utterances, which consist of recombination of learned elements in a limited number of content areas, particularly if strongly supported by the situational context. Content refers to basic personal background and needs, social conventions and routine tasks, such as getting meals and receiving simple instructions and directions. Listening tasks pertain primarily to spontaneous face-to-face conversations. Understanding is often uneven; repetition and rewording may be necessary. Misunderstandings in both main ideas and details arise frequently.

Intermediate-Mid

Able to understand sentence-length utterances that consist of recombination of learned utterances in a variety of topics. Content continues to refer primarily to basic personal background and needs, social conventions, and somewhat more complex tasks, such as lodging, transportation, and shopping. Additional content areas include some personal interests and activities, and a greater diversity of instructions and directions. Listening tasks not only pertain to spontaneous face-to-face conversations but also to short routine telephone conversations and some deliberate speech, such as simple announcements and reports over the media. Understanding continues to be uneven.

READING

Intermediate-Mid

Able to read consistently with increased understanding, simple connected texts dealing with a variety of basic and social needs. Such texts are still linguistically noncomplex and have a clear underlying internal structure. They impart basic information about which the reader has to make minimal suppositions and to which the reader brings personal interest and/or knowledge. Examples may include short, straightforward descriptions of persons, places, and things written for a wide audience.

WRITING

Intermediate-Low

Able to meet limited practical writing needs. Can write short messages, postcards, and take down simple notes, such as telephone messages. Can create statements or questions within the scope of limited language experience. Material produced consists of recombination of learned vocabulary and structures into simple sentences on very familiar topics.

Section 5	LEARNING OUTCOMES	METHOD OF ASSESSMENT
•	I. Be able to speak successfully at the Intermediate-Low proficiency level (see ACTFL guidelines) in a limited number of interactive, task-oriented and social situations. Can initiate and respond to simple statements and maintain face-to-face conversations. Can perform such tasks as introducing self, ordering a meal, asking directions and making purchases.	Performance-based assessments: in-class discussions, individual oral evaluations by the Instructor in an unstructured conversational mode. Student's scenarios in class and performance in language lab assignments.
•	II. Be able to understand sentence-length utterances at the Intermediate-Mid proficiency level which consist of recombinations of learned elements in a limited number of content areas. Content refers to basic personal background and needs, social conventions and routine tasks.	Listening-comprehension assignments (in class and in the language lab) geared toward the measurement of general understanding. Testing of this skill.
•	III. Be able to read consistently at the Intermediate-Mid proficiency level with increased understanding of simple connected texts dealing with a variety of basic and social needs. Examples may include short, straightforward descriptions of persons, places and things written for wide audiences.	Check comprehension of reading by appropriate questions and activities in class, in the language lab and in the reading section of tests.
•	IV. Be able to meet limited practical writing needs at the Intermediate-Low proficiency level. Can write short messages, postcards and take down simple notes. Can create statements or questions within the scope of limited language experience.	In class writing assignments, homework and language lab activities. Writing section of tests.
